

In this issue

Vol. 7, Oct 2012

- 1. Message from the new President
- 2. Guest Editorial - Christian Tomuschat
- 3. Valencia 2012 - Report
- 4. Amsterdam 2013
- 5. ESIL Book Prize

Editorial Board
Massimo Iovane (Napoli) and Geir Ulfstein (Oslo)

Having difficulties reading this page? Click here to read the newsletter in PDF format.

You rencontrez des difficultés pour lire cette page? Veuillez cliquer ici pour lire la newsletter en format PDF.

1. Message from the new President

Dear ESIL Members,

At the 5th Biennial Conference in Valencia and the meeting of the Executive Board that followed, I had the honour of being elected President for the coming two years. This is a real privilege for me. I hope that I can contribute to the growth of ESIL and to its scientific reputation.

Allow me first to thank Anne Peters, who served as President of ESIL from 2010 to 2012. Her unwavering commitment and great human and intellectual qualities have enabled the Society to consolidate its standing and to implement new initiatives. I also wish to extend my gratitude and that of the Society to the six members whose term the Board has just finished (Barbara Delcourt, Francesco Francioni, Jan Klubbers, Lino-Alexandre Siciliano, Rüdiger Wolfrum, Ineta Ziemiela). In addition, I would like to welcome five new members to the Board (Anne van Aaken, Nehal Bhuta, Luis Hinojosa, Massimo Iovane, Ralph Wilde). It is important that the outgoing members as well as the incoming members know that the Society recognises their substantial contribution to the Society. I would also like to thank Mario Prost, who has agreed to continue his excellent work as Executive Director of ESIL. Our heartfelt gratitude is likewise due to Joyce Davies, Administrative Director of ESIL, who continues to adroitly serve the Society.

The strength of ESIL is in its members. The Valencia Conference showed how the Society remains a vibrant one. Inspired by the organisers, Jorge Cardona and Mariano Aznar, we were engaged in debate as to the contours of regionalism in the international legal order as well as its — occasionally ambivalent — relationship with universalism.

My aim as President is to promote the scientific reputation of the Society so that it becomes a central actor in the scholarly debate in Europe. Our work should reflect the diversity of legal and linguistic traditions as well as the diversity of conceptions of international law. The development of the Society's relationship with other scientific institutions, including national societies, is also necessary. In short, we will need to continue the healthy dialogue with our partners.

ESIL also relies on the vitality of its interest groups. As they become more numerous we must ensure that they too have a voice within the groups. I will return to this issue of how to strengthen the role of interest groups in the coming months.

I very much look forward to working with you over these next two years. Let us build on the vitality and vibrancy of ESIL!

Laurence Boisson de Chazournes
President, European Society of International Law (ESIL)

2. Guest Editorial

The Collapse of the Euro Regime under the Lisbon Treaty

Christian Tomuschat - Professor Emeritus, Humboldt University of Berlin

Europeans always took pride in affirming that the integration process of the 27 nations was intimately linked to the rule of law. The European Union seemed to stand on firm legal ground. In the midst of the current financial crisis, this belief has suffered heavy damage.

The Euro, instead of contributing to strengthening European cohesiveness, has brought the common undertaking to the brink of collapse. Hastily, strategies have been developed since 2010 to provide financial assistance to ailing Member States, in particular to Greece, Ireland and Portugal. With Italy and Spain also facing up to hefty budget deficits, the rescue package threatens to engulf the Union in a major financial and economic disaster.

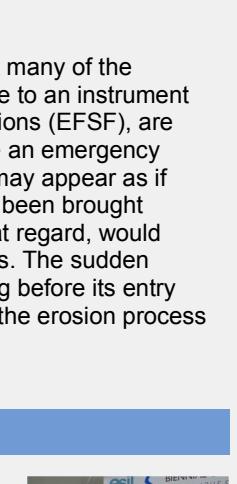

No fault can be attributed to the substantive legal regime. The Lisbon Treaty, complemented by the Protocol on the "Excessive Deficit Procedure", establishes precise limits on annual deficits and overall governmental debt. Care was also taken to specify that, notwithstanding the currency union, each Member State remains responsible for its own financial stability. The bailout clause of the TFEU – no assumption by the Union or by Member States of financial commitments of any other Member State – was hailed as the touchstone of a regime of strict separation of national budgets. And lastly, the temptation of simply printing money was struck by a formal ban.

And yet: as pressure built up in the Euro zone, these defences started faltering. In 2002 already, France and Germany had set a bad example by ignoring the "Growth and Stability Pact". As a consequence of turmoil at world level, the threat of a default of some Member States acted again as a potent mobile to find creative legal responses to the perceived threat of a financial and economic disaster with unpredictable consequences. All the mechanisms designed to maintain individual responsibility of the Member States received an interpretation suited to deflect any possible objections. And the European Central Bank has started buying governmental bonds seemingly without any restriction.

Averting catastrophe is an understandable concern. And it may even be that many of the measures taken, such as the blowing up of an exceptional emergency clause to an instrument encompassing 60 billion Euros or the resort to dubious private law constructions (EFSF), are justifiable under the relevant treaty provisions. Yet the lesson is clear: where an emergency situation arises or is perceived to arise, the law will have a difficult stand. It may appear as if "Not kennt kein Gebot" has become the paramount rule. No proceeding has been brought before the Court of Justice since the Commission, holding a monopoly in that regard, would commit political suicide by initiating a legal action impeding the rescue efforts. The sudden weakness of the law also casts a shadow on the Fiscal Compact Treaty, long before its entry into force. At the same time, the ensuing loss of confidence may accelerate the erosion process which currently threatens the integration process in its entirety.

3. Valencia 2012 - Report

From 13 to 15 September 2012, the University of Valencia hosted the 5th ESIL General Conference, in collaboration with the Centro de Estudios de Derecho y Relaciones Internacionales (CEDRI). Almost 280 people from around the world were welcomed to the old building of the university to discuss the theme of 'Regionalism and International Law'.

The Swiss Confederation, the Spanish Government, the Regional Government of Valencia, the Museum of Fine Arts of Valencia, Broseta Law Firm and Bruylant Editores all kindly supported the conference. Oxford University Press generously sponsored part of the welcome cocktail, which was hosted at the Botanic Gardens of the University of Valencia.

Prior to the main conference, the eight ESIL Interest Groups held their meetings and workshops. The conference then opened with a welcome address delivered by four distinguished speakers: Esteban Morcillo, the Chancellor of the University of Valencia, Dr. Urs Ziswiler, Ambassador of the Swiss Confederation in Spain, ESIL President Anne Peters, and Jorge Cardona, one of the conference organizers.

The conference consisted of eight fora and eight agorae. The themes of the fora were: History and Concept of Regionalism; Regionalism and the Unity of International Law; Regionalism, International Organisation and Integration; Regionalism and Globalization; Allocating Interests: States Legal Policies between Universalism and Regionalism; Regionalism, Peace and Security; WTO and Regional Integration; Regionalism and Human Rights. The agorae looked at the following topics: International Law Making; Internal Dimensions of Self-Determination; Frozen Regions: Arctic & Antarctica; the New Millennium; Development and Economic Law; Lost in Translation: Migration, Culture and Religion in a Different Region; Global Environment and Regional Responsibilities; Regional Traditions and Universal Judicial Institutions; Collapsed States, International Administrations, Occupation and Neo-Protectorates. Only the best 24 among 190 submitted abstracts were selected for the agorae in a highly competitive process.

In the various fora and agorae, each with their unique approach, every aspect of regionalism in current international law was analysed, giving an opportunity for deep, interesting scientific discussions among all the participants and the members of the panels.

We should like to announce that all conference sessions - which were broadcast live on the web - will be uploaded to the website of CEDRI (with a link to the ESIL website) in a few weeks from now so they will be available for all members.

Furthermore, all the Forum contributions and some of the Agora and Interest Group sessions will be published in the Select Proceedings of the European Society of International Law (Vol. 4, Hart Publishing, 2013) and in the ESIL SSRN Conference Paper Series.

The ESIL General Assembly was held on Sat 15 Sept and, among other decisions, new Board members were elected. At the ESIL Board meeting the following day, Laurence Boisson de Chazournes was elected as the new President of the society, taking over from Anne Peters. The conference ended with a gala dinner at the Museum of Fine Arts of Valencia. After a private visit offered by the Museum, a cocktail and dinner was offered in the cloisters and the Ambassador Vichy patric. During dinner, the ESIL Prize was awarded to our colleague Michael Waibel, and all of us present agreed to meet again in Amsterdam for the forthcoming ESIL Research Forum and in Vienna for the 6th ESIL Biennial Conference. See you there!

4. Amsterdam 2013

On 23-25 May 2013, the 5th ESIL Research Forum will take place in Amsterdam. It will be organised jointly by the Amsterdam Center for International Law (University of Amsterdam) and the Department of Transnational Legal Studies (VU University Amsterdam). The theme of the Research Forum is 'International Law as a Profession'.

The Research Forum will explore the different roles exercised by international lawyers (the international lawyer as a judge or arbitrator; as a legal adviser, counsel or diplomat; as an academic, researcher, or teacher; and as a domestic lawyer). Each of these roles may come with different discourses and conceptions about how the making, the application, the interpretation, the enforcement, and the systematization of international law is carried out.

Keynote speeches will be delivered by Vaughan Lowe and David Kennedy. The Forum also will have two semi-plenaries with invited speakers, and a large number of panels to be formed on the basis of the call for papers.

The website and the preliminary programme are now online at www.esil2013.nl. The call for papers, also to be found at this website, was opened immediately following the Valencia Conference, with a deadline of 15 November 2012.

The event will take place in Felix Meritis, built in 1788, one of the grandest buildings on the Keizersgracht in the old center of Amsterdam.

Online registration will open on 1 December 2012.

5. ESIL Book Prize

The 2012 ESIL Book Prize was awarded to Michael Waibel, Lauterpacht Centre for International Law, University of Cambridge, for his book "Sovereign Defaults before International Courts and Tribunals" published in May 2011 by Cambridge University Press.

The jury members, Eyal Benvenisti, Jutta Brunnée and Francesco Francioni, were unanimous in their selection of the prize-winner: "A remarkable book – to our knowledge, it is the first comprehensive and systematic treatment of this subject. The book combines historical analysis with careful research of case law and other practice. The result is an impressive and original treatment of a subject that is of the utmost relevance for the present state of the international economic system."

The prize was awarded during the Gala Dinner at the 5th ESIL Biennial Conference in Valencia.

T.M.C. Asser Press and Springer are delighted to offer ESIL members a 20% discount on law titles, courtesy of T.M.C. Asser Instituut. Recent titles include:

- New Approaches to International Law - The European and the American Experiences, J.M. Beneyto and D. Kennedy (Eds.) - ISBN 978-90-6704-878-1
- Separating Powers: International Law before National Courts, D. Haljan - ISBN 978-90-6704-857-6
- Yearbook of International Humanitarian Law 2011 - Volume 14, M.N. Schmitt and L. Animatsu (Eds.) - ISBN 978-90-6704-854-5
- Netherlands Yearbook of International Law 2011 - Apura: The Case of Iraq: International Law and Politics, I.F. Dekker and E. Hey (Eds.) - ISBN 978-90-6704-848-4
- EU External Relations Law and Policy in the Post-Lisbon Era - P. J. Cardwell (Ed.) - ISBN 978-90-6704-822-4
- Anticipative Criminal Investigation - Theory and Counterterrorism Practice in the Netherlands and the United States, Marianne F.H. Hirsch Ballin - ISBN 978-90-6704-842-2
- Is There a Court for Gaza? A Test Bench for International Justice, C. Meloni, G. Tognoni (Eds.) - ISBN 978-90-6704-819-4
- Social Services of General Interest in the EU - Legal Issues of Services of General Interest Series - U. Neergaard, E. Szyszczak, J.W. van der Gronden, M. Krajewski (Eds.) - ISBN 978-90-6704-875-0
- Human ICT Implants: Technical, Legal and Ethical Considerations - Information Technology and Law Series vol. 23, M.N. Gasson, E. Kosta and Diana Bowman (Eds.) - ISBN 978-90-6704-869-9
- Introduction to International and European Sports Law - Capita Selecta - ASSER International Sports Law Series, R.C.R. Siekmann - ISBN 978-90-6704-851-4

To receive the discount simply follow the link below which will take you directly to the ESIL Book Discount Portal where the discount will be automatically applied. Remember to bookmark the link for future access too. <http://www.springer.com/esil/token=StRKKxDJGB3Y6v88>

Should you need more information, please contact:
Antoine Wessels
T.M.C. Asser Press
P.O.Box 16163
2500 BD The Hague
The Netherlands
Tel.: +31.70.3420803
Fax: +31.70.3420801
Email: a.wessels@asser.nl

2. Editorial de l'invité

The Collapse of the Euro Regime under the Lisbon Treaty

Christian Tomuschat - Professeur émérite, Université Humboldt de Berlin

Europeans always took pride in affirming that the integration process of the 27 nations was intimately linked to the rule of law. The European Union seemed to stand on firm legal ground. In the midst of the current financial crisis, this belief has suffered heavy damage.

The Euro, instead of contributing to strengthening European cohesiveness, has brought the common undertaking to the brink of collapse. Hastily, strategies have been developed since 2010 to provide financial assistance to ailing Member States, in particular to Greece, Ireland and Portugal. With Italy and Spain also facing up to hefty budget deficits, the rescue package threatens to engulf the Union in a major financial and economic disaster.

No fault can be attributed to the substantive legal regime. The Lisbon Treaty, complemented by the Protocol on the "Excessive Deficit Procedure", establishes precise limits on annual deficits and overall governmental debt. Care was also taken to specify that, notwithstanding the currency union, each Member State remains responsible for its own financial stability. The bailout clause of the TFEU – no assumption by the Union or by Member States of financial commitments of any other Member State – was hailed as the touchstone of a regime of strict separation of national budgets. And lastly, the temptation of simply printing money was struck by a formal ban.

And yet: as pressure built up in the Euro zone, these defences started faltering. In 2002 already, France and Germany had set a bad example by ignoring the "Growth and Stability Pact". As a consequence of turmoil at world level, the threat of a default of some Member States acted again as a potent mobile to find creative legal responses to the perceived threat of a financial and economic disaster with unpredictable consequences. All the mechanisms designed to maintain individual responsibility of the Member States received an interpretation suited to deflect any possible objections. And the European Central Bank has started buying governmental bonds seemingly without any restriction.

Averting catastrophe is an understandable concern. And it may even be that many of the measures taken, such as the blowing up of an exceptional emergency clause to an instrument encompassing 60 billion Euros or the resort to dubious private law constructions (EFSF), are justifiable under the relevant treaty provisions. Yet the lesson is clear: where an emergency situation arises or is perceived to arise, the law will have a difficult stand. It may appear as if "Not kennt kein Gebot" has become the paramount rule. No proceeding has been brought before the Court of Justice since the Commission, holding a monopoly in that regard, would commit political suicide by initiating a legal action impeding the rescue efforts. The sudden weakness of the law also casts a shadow on the Fiscal Compact Treaty, long before its entry into force. At the same time, the ensuing loss of confidence may accelerate the erosion process which currently threatens the integration process in its entirety.

3. Valencia 2012 - Compte rendu

From 13 to 15 September 2012, the University of Valencia hosted the 5th ESIL General Conference, in collaboration with the Centro de Estudios de Derecho y Relaciones Internacionales (CEDRI). Almost 280 people from around the world were welcomed to the old building of the university to discuss the theme of 'Regionalism and International Law'.

The Swiss Confederation, the Spanish Government, the Regional Government of Valencia, the Museum of Fine Arts of Valencia, Broseta Law Firm and Bruylant Editores all kindly supported the conference. Oxford University Press generously sponsored part of the welcome cocktail, which was hosted at the Botanic Gardens of the University of Valencia.

Prior to the main conference, the eight ESIL Interest Groups held their meetings and workshops. The conference then opened with a welcome address delivered by four distinguished speakers: Esteban Morcillo, the Chancellor of the University of Valencia, Dr. Urs Ziswiler, Ambassador of the Swiss Confederation in Spain, ESIL President Anne Peters, and Jorge Cardona, one of the conference organizers.

The conference consisted of eight fora and eight agorae. The themes of the fora were: History and Concept of Regionalism; Regionalism and the Unity of International Law; Regionalism, International Organisation and Integration; Regionalism and Globalization; Allocating Interests: States Legal Policies between Universalism and Regionalism; Regionalism, Peace and Security; WTO and Regional Integration; Regionalism and Human Rights. The agorae looked at the following topics: International Law Making; Internal Dimensions of Self-Determination; Frozen Regions: Arctic & Antarctica; the New Millennium; Development and Economic Law; Lost in Translation: Migration, Culture and Religion in a Different Region; Global Environment and Regional Responsibilities; Regional Traditions and Universal Judicial Institutions; Collapsed States, International Administrations, Occupation and Neo-Protectorates. Only the best 24 among 190 submitted abstracts were selected for the agorae in a highly competitive process.

In the various fora and agorae, each with their unique approach, every aspect of regionalism in current international law was analysed, giving an opportunity for deep, interesting scientific discussions among all the participants and the members of the panels.

We should like to announce that all conference sessions - which were broadcast live on the web - will be uploaded to the website of CEDRI (with a link to the ESIL website) in a few weeks from now so they will be available for all members.

Furthermore, all the Forum contributions and some of the Agora and Interest Group sessions will be published in the Select Proceedings of the European Society of International Law (Vol. 4, Hart Publishing, 2013) and in the ESIL SSRN Conference Paper Series.

The ESIL General Assembly was held on Sat 15 Sept and, among other decisions, new Board members were elected. At the ESIL Board meeting the following day, Laurence Boisson de Chazournes was elected as the new President of the society, taking over from Anne Peters. The conference ended with a gala dinner at the Museum of Fine Arts of Valencia. After a private visit offered by the Museum, a cocktail and dinner was offered in the cloisters and the Ambassador Vichy patric. During dinner, the ESIL Prize was awarded to our colleague Michael Waibel, and all of us present agreed to meet again in Amsterdam for the forthcoming ESIL Research Forum and in Vienna for the 6th ESIL Biennial Conference. See you there!

4. Amsterdam 2013

On 23-25 May 2013, the 5th ESIL Research Forum will take place in Amsterdam. It will be organised jointly by the Amsterdam Center for International Law (University of Amsterdam) and the Department of Transnational Legal Studies (VU University Amsterdam). The theme of the Research Forum is 'International Law as a Profession'.

The Research Forum will explore the different roles exercised by international lawyers (the international lawyer as a judge or arbitrator; as a legal adviser, counsel or diplomat; as an academic, researcher, or teacher; and as a domestic lawyer). Each of these roles may come with different discourses and conceptions about how the making, the application, the interpretation, the enforcement, and the systematization of international law is carried out.

Keynote speeches will be delivered by Vaughan Lowe and David Kennedy. The Forum also will have two semi-plenaries with invited speakers, and a large number of panels to be formed on the basis of the call for papers.